NUMB. 3243

TUESDAY, JULY 24, 1744.

Yesterday arriv'd a Mail from Holland.

Naples, July 7.

HE Regency have receiv'd within these few Days, precise Orders from the King to insinuate to all the Princes, Noblemen, and Vassals of the Crown, that his Majesty expects they should deposit a certain Part of their Revenues in the Royal Treasury; that, in case of any sudden Emergency, they may have Recourse to it for the Supply of Money. On Thursday 14 Transports, that sail'd away with Provisions for the Army, returned to this Port, having very happily landed their Goods. The next Morning there arriv'd two more Masters of which went immediately to the Coast, and gave an Account that Eight English Men were upon our Coast; upon which all the necessary precautions were taken to prevent a Descent, or Landing. According to the last Letters from the Kingdom, the Plague begins to shew itself again in that Country; Twenty-one Persons having died between the 5th and 11th of June; and we are the more apprehensive that this contagious Distemper will extend to the Country, because the Lines are no longer kept.

We have, of late, no News from Abruzzo; occasions infinite Uneasiness among such as are attached to the present Establishment. A Courier arriv'd from the Army with some good News, of which we cannot yet learn; and another is expected from Gaeta, with the News of the City being safely brought to Bed.

July 11. The Armies continue, at present, in the Situation they were when we wrote last; but at de Gages has found Means to extend his Quarters considerably. He appears to be the greatest Master of his Time, since his Entrenchments are carried quite to the Sea Shore, and so cover'd with Batteries, that the Austrians have hitherto only lost Men when they endeavour'd to attack them. Two Days since he discover'd a Spring which supplies the Camp with Water; for which Service, his Majesty has given him a Present of 3000 Ducats, with his own Prince Lobkowitz seeing plainly, that no Advantage is to be obtained, and that his Troops are more indisposed by the Heats; his, at last, taken a Resolution to retire towards Tivoli; to which he has been rather induced, by the prodigious Fire from the Batteries, which keep his Troops in perpetual Alarm. It is apprehended, that General Landini, who has beat the Austrian Detachments that were sent to the Abruzzo, will march to Senigaglia in order to burn the Magazines which the Austrians have there under very small Guards. The Advices of this General's Troops, enter'd, the other Day, into the Frontiers, where the Inhabitants, fearing them for Austrians, began to cry, Long to the Queen of Hungary; but the People very soon were undeceived, since the Soldiers not only plundred every Thing that was worth taking, but set Houses on Fire, and burnt the Place to the Ground.

July 11. There arriv'd here Yesterday an Express from Leghorn, dispatch'd by the English Consul, with Advice, that two Men of War, three Transports, and three Frigates, had enter'd that Harbour. Some of our Politicians immediately circulated that this English Squadron, in Conjunction with the French Fleet, was already there belonging to the King of Sicily, to be employed in transporting Baron Theodorick of Sicily to the Kingdom of Corsica. He lives at present at Leghorn, and is not far from the City of Genoa, having a reasonable Number of Servants about him, and in every other Respect, a handsome Person. We have since been inform'd, that two English Men of War besides are since arriv'd at Leghorn; and we begin to fancy, that they are intended to be landed in the Kingdom of Naples; and to confirm this Notion, is the March of a Regiment of Guards from hence for Leghorn, and the Orders to carry with them, whatever belong'd to the Army, and Carriages being allow'd them for that Purpose.

July 16. The Squadron which is to transport the Princess Royal of Sweden, lies at Anchor in the Bay of Genoa, under the Island of Reyen; it consists of six Men of War, several Shallops and smaller Vessels, on board of which there are upwards of 4000 Men, Soldiers and Seamen; there are also 100 Persons of Distinction, that are to attend her Royal Highness. The Charles Gustavus, on board which Admiral Count Soubise hoists his Flag, carries 105 Guns, and 1200 Men. The two Yachts, intended for the Princess and her Train, have their State Room lin'd, the one with Green, the other with Blue Damask; the former, which is designed for the Princess, is one of the finest Vessels, and the most completely fitted up, that ever was. All the Seamen are dress'd in Blue Jackets, lac'd with Silver. The Arrival of her Royal Highness is expected with the utmost Impatience, every Thing being perfectly ready for her Reception.

Manheim, July 14. On the 19th of this Month the Body of Major-General Baron de Waldenheim was inter'd here, with all possible Solemnity. They are extremely busy in transporting vast Quantities of Provisions to the Austrian Camp. The sudden Rise of the Rhine, and of the Rivers which run into it, render it impossible for the Austrians to transport their Artillery; and has even oblig'd them to abandon the Posts they had taken near Fort Louis. Tho' the Garrison of that Fort has made prodigious Fire for eight Days together, they have not been able to dislodge the Austrians from the Island of Sclingen. Prince Charles has, for some Time, employed 500 Peasants in the Construction of a Fort near Lauterbourg. There are in that Post 500 Hussars and Croats, and 400 more at Weissenberg. The Garrison of Landau consists of 10,000 Men, and best Part of them are encamp'd under the Walls. They have mounted two or three Pieces of Cannon, in order to defend the Meadows where the Cattle belonging to the Garrison graze; and yet the Hussars borrow Ten or a Dozen Head at a Time. The other Day they carried off three French Officers, who were talking together on the present State of Affairs, and transferred them to their own Quarters.

Tourney, July 15. The Quarter-Masters-General of the Army of the Allies arriv'd here Yesterday, under an Escort of 50 Hussars. It is said they are to trace a Camp within a League of this Place. Some Battalions of our Garrison are to reinforce the Regiment of Waldeck, which remains still encamp'd near Flint. It is certain, that the French have already begun to raise Militia in the Chateaux of Ypres, Menin, and Courtray, so that the Inhabitants have already begun to feel the Difference of Governments; when, we hope, the People of Flanders will exert themselves with the utmost Vigour in Favour of the Allies. The Count de Saxe lies very quiet, intrenched up to the Teeth, behind the Lys. He has sent all his heavy Artillery to Douay; from whence it is plain, that Conquests are over for this Season, and that the Army of France must be now content to act upon the Defensive, and think themselves happy, if they can preserve what they have got.

Brussels, July 17. It is not yet certain whether the Army of the Allies will pass the Scheldt, in order to go and attack the French in their Camp; or whether they will direct towards Hanault, in order to form the Siege of Maubeuge, or some other Place; with a View to oblige the Count de Saxe to quit the advantageous Camp he occupies at present. It is said, when his most Christian Majesty quitted Flanders, he told the Marshal Count de Saxe, Sir, This Army, and this Country, I confide solely to your Care.

Hague, July 30. The Count de Podewil was an extraordinary Conference with the Regency Yesterday in the Evening, which lasted from Seven till Ten at Night, and is said to have related to the Affairs of East-Friesland. The Count de Wassenar is expected here on Tuesday next. All our Troops are hastning to the Army; and we expect, very soon, to hear from thence News of very great Importance. A Courier from Count Wassenar brings Advice, that the Day he left Arras, a Prussian Courier likewise quitted it, who was carrying back an Answer to his Court, to certain Dispatches that he had delivered two Days before into the Hands of the most Christian King.

COUNTRY NEWS.

Bristol, July 21. Last Friday a Bill of Fire fell on a Hay-Cock at Twerton, near Bath, and went thro' the Earth; it struck two Men that were near it down, but did not hurt them; and about two Miles from the same Place, Hail had been measured nine Inches deep, some of the Stones measuring two Inches round.

HOME PORTS.

Arriv'd

At Newcastle, the Peter and Mary, Iredale, from Virginia for London.

L O N D O N.

According to the last Advices that can be depended upon from the Upper Rhine, the French remain'd encamp'd at Haguenau on the 23d; and the Austrians, who have been much retarded by the rising of the Waters, were actually cannonading Fort Louis on the 23d.

Prince Charles of Lorraine has caus'd a great Body of Austrian Troops to take Possession of the Valley of Leiningen; by which Means, the Passage of the Reinforcements marching to the Relief of M. Coigny is cut off.

The English Fleet is return'd from the Road of Val de Vaire, and has again block'd up Marseilles and Toulon.

The Diamond, Gantley, has taken, and sent to Leghorn, a Ship bound from Damiate to Marseilles, laden with Rice and Drugs.

The Phoenix, Wilson, from Whitehaven to Rotterdam, is taken and carried into Dunkirk.

By an Extract of a Letter from Capt. William Potter, of the Firebrand Privateer belonging to Exeter, dated the 10th Instant, 12 Leagues S. W. of Ushant, brought by a Dutch Ship, we have the following Account; viz.

The 6th Inst. by Three in the Morning, he espied two Sail, to which he gave Chase, and came up with them about Eight, and found them to be Privateers; one mounted 36 Carriage Guns, the other 14 Carriage, and as many Swivels; and both together, he thought, had 500 Men. They fought him both on one Side, but he soon disabled the least; and after fighting the other two Glasse, she thought fit to sheer off. Captain Potter had four Men kill'd, and five wounded, but they were like to do well. He says, his Crew behaved like Englishmen; and tho' he had received above 500 Shot in his Hull, Sails, and Rigging, he would wait some Time longer in that Station, and hoped soon to bring Home a Prize.

The Firebrand has 21 Carriage Guns, 14 Swivels, and 123 Men.

North Borgen, July 18. Capt. Johnston, from Rhode Island, hath had the Misfortune to be taken by a French Privateer, that came in here a few Days ago; I had the good Fortune to get him and 11 more Men released here, in order to their going to Britain.

Yesterday Mr. Carrington, one of his Majesty's Messengers, arriv'd at the Lord Carteret's Office at Whitehall, with Affairs of Importance.

The Installation of the new Knights of the Bath is now fix'd for the 20th of October; and Orders are issued out for that Purpose.

Yesterday Sir John St. Aubin, Bart. Knight of the Shire for the County of Cornwall, set out for his Seat in that Country.

Last Saturday Night a Fire broke out in the Foundry at London Wall, belonging to Mr. Wayer, which burnt with great Violence; but by the timely Assistance of the Firemen, and others, it was happily got under.

Last Saturday
1574

George Cheny was Burnt in the Hand for Manslayer; Two were Acquitted; and Four that were Attainted last Lent Assizes, were order'd for Transportation for Fourteen Years.

Yesterday died, at his Lodgings at Highgate, Henry Woodstock, Esq; a Gentleman of a large Estate in the County of Suffolk.

The same Night, two Gentlemen in a Chaise was attack'd on Cambridge Heath, by two Fellows on Foot, who took from them their Watches and Money, and then made off.

Falmouth, July 19. Wind S. E. On the 12th sailed
the Adventure Privateer, Capt. Israel, on a Cruise. Off the Seven Islands she fell in with the Providence, Captain La Maison Neuge, a French Privateer, of 10 Guns, and 55 Men; which after a short Engagement he took,
and carried her into Guernsey; and having learnt by the Captain that his Companion was obliged to put into St. Malo to get a new Mast, he accordingly cruized off that Place, and fell in with her the 15th Inst. whom he also took after a stout Engagement of six Hours. She is called the Notre Dame de Vaux, Jean Flevery Commander; of six Carriage, and eight Swivel Guns, and 104 Men, and has brought her into this Port. What encouraged the French Captain to fight, was, that three Hours after the Engagement began, the Princess Augusta Privateer came in sight of them, hoisting French Colours; but as soon as the Princess Augusta hoisted English Colours, the French Privateer struck to Captain Israel. This is the Fourth French Privateer Capt. Israel has taken within the Space of seven Weeks.
